INTRODUCTION.

THIS is not a complete history of the Cones in America; nor is it a complete history of any one branch of the family. Noah did not carry into the Ark a little box containing the pedigree of the Cone tribe, but, if he had done so, and all his descendants to this time had made a combined and earnest effort to collect and preserve the records of the family, it would not then have been complete. Very seldom do all the members of a family agree as to dates, names, places, and incidents; town and church records often differ with themselves and with family records, and headstone inscriptions cannot be depended upon in all cases. The compiler has striven most earnestly to have every record verified, and, although there are undoubtedly mistakes in this book, it is hoped that no serious errors or omissions will be noticed. Entire accuracy has never yet been attained in a family history.

Although no systematic effort has been made to connect the American Cone line with those of other lands, yet a diligent search was made to find the birthplace of Daniel Cone, but without success. No available "passenger list" of date previous to 1670 contains the name, and no record, published or unpublished, within my knowledge, gives this information.

There are many by the name in this country whose ancestors were originally either Coan, Coen, Cohn, Cohen, Coon, Kone, Koen, to Cone. No records of these are published in this book. There is, however, one branch of the Cone family whose members spell the Koehn, McCune or McCone, who, for various reasons, have changed name Coan. The records of this family will be found in their proper order.

Very little credit is due the compiler for anything of value to be found in this work. Nearly every name, record, date or incident herein mentioned has been furnished him by others, and no apology is deemed necessary for the amount of space devoted to acknowledging his indebtedness to individual members of the family for records and other information which they have so cheerfully furnished.

While a large proportion of those to whom letters of inquiry were sent have furnished the records required, whenever possible, yet more than nine hundred letters to members of the family remain unanswered, and the records of those lines will be found incomplete and unsatisfactory.

A very difficult part of my work has been the separation of the facts relating to Daniel Cone from the fictions, traditions, conjectures, opinions, surmises and guesses which were offered as facts, and which were based upon imperfect knowledge of the subject. No authenticated mention of Daniel Cone has been found of date previous to 1657, either in this country or elsewhere.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Having received many valuable genealogical data from genealogists and compilers of family history, I desire to express my appreciation of their kindly aid and assistance. Without an exception I have ever found them accommodating and obliging and always ready to furnish any available data needed. I am especially indebted to Rev. E. E. Lewis, Haddam; Miss Lucy Brainard, Mrs. Sophia S. Martin, and John E. Morris, of Hartford; Mrs. Sophia F. H. Coe, W. H. Catlin, and William W. Lee, Meriden; Frank F. Starr and Henry J. Pelton, Middletown; Rev. F. W. Bailey, New Haven, and Rollin U. Tyler, Tylersville, Connecticut.—E. A. Claypool, Seymour Morris, and John Sargent, Chicago; John Newcomb, Elgin, and E. H. Baker, Rockford, Illinois.—H. F. Andrews, Exira, Iowa.—Charles Burleigh, Brunswick; Brown Thurston and S. M. Watson, Portland, Maine.—Wm. Tracy Eustis, E. G. Davis, and Eben Putnam, Boston; C. W. Huntington, Lowell; J. M. French, Milford; Warren Ladd, Bedford; Gilman B. Howe, Northford; Rollin U. Cooke, Pittsfield; I. K. Annable, Salem; E. B. Crane and Theodore Parker, Worcester, Mass.—John P. Hall and Helen E. Keep, Detroit, and W. C. Ransom, St. Joseph, Michigan.—Rev. Jacob Chapman, Exeter, New Hampshire.—Daniel H. Carpenter, Maplewood, New Jersey.—Dr. D. Williams Patterson, Newark Valley; Martin H. Stafford and James Wells, New York city; Homer D. L. Sweet, Syracuse; and Frank Lamb, Westfield, New York.—C. V. Case, Ashtabula, Ohio.—Chas. D. Coe, Alleghany City, Pa.—R. H. Tilly, Newport; D. J. Hall, Providence; and Caroline Robinson, Wakefield, Rhode Island.—Mrs. Kate M. Cone, Hartford, Vermont; and Mrs. H. B. Northrup, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The following members of the family have ably assisted me in the matter of furnishing family records, some of them having written more than a hundred letters each; and I cannot do less than acknowledge my indebtedness for their great interest thus manifested in this work :

George W. Cone, Johnson's Crossing, Alabama; Richard Cone, Thornton, Ark.; William K. Cone, Eureka Springs, Ark.; Henry Cone, Alameda, Cal.; William H. Cone, San Francisco, Cal.; Rev. William O. Cone, Hartford, Vermont; Jasper Hazen, Woodstock, Vermont; Mrs. M. A. Cone, Menomonie, Wisconsin.

Town records in many towns in Connecticut have been examined, and in every case I have found the town clerks obliging and accommodating.

I am under special obligations to the Connecticut Historical Society, at Hartford, and the Kansas State Historical Society, at Topeka, for favors extended.

A great proportion of the half-tone pictures in this book are the work of those widely-known engravers, Messrs. Teachenor & Bartberger, of Kansas City, Mo. Their most excellent work gives general satisfaction.

ROLL OF HONOR.

It is probable that these records would not have been published at this time in this form had it not been for the members of the family whose names are herein given, and I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge my indebtedness to them for their valuable and timely assistance during the progress of this work:

CONE CLAN CHARACTERISTICS.

The Cones, as a race, are generally free-hearted and generous, quick to make friends and seldom have enemies. They have a lively, active turn of mind, with a pleasant, cheerful, and even mirthful disposition. There is a universal belief among the tribe that "a cent's worth of mirth and jollity is better than a dollar's worth of dignity," and, while they have sufficient dignity for all purposes, yet it has never been known to hurt any of them. They are inclined to look on the bright side of life, and a long face is seldom found in the family. They are adventurous and enterprising, and have always been found among the pioneers of any new country. It is recorded that the "wise men came from the East." The Cones followed this early example, but they did not return, and therein was their wisdom. There is a pretty broad streak of originality and force of character running through nearly every line; and the high-tempered Cones are not in the minority. A strong religious feeling seems to prevail throughout the tribe, backed up by an overwhelming moral and temperance sentiment. They do not fly high, nor very low; and, while none of the tribe have ever been sent to Congress, neither are any of them, to my knowledge, in a penitentiary. In general, we may say that they will average fairly well with the rest of humanity.

DANIEL CONE AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

DANIEL CONE was possibly the first of the name in America. His birthplace has not been found, nor has the exact date of his birth been ascertained. The records on these points are lacking, and conjectures are worse than useless. The first mention of Daniel Cone of which I have any knowledge, is in a letter from John Winthrop, Governor of the Connecticut Colony, to Peter Stuyvesant, Governor of New Netherlands, dated March 2, 1657, and probably written from New London, Conn., this being the place of residence of the Governor at that time. It was published in the Massachusetts Historical Collections, by the Massachusetts Historical Society, in Vol. VIII, 5th series, and is as follows:

HONORED SIR:—

Complaint being made to me by Daniell Cone that one James Parker (for whom he stands bound with John Cockrill for fifteen pounds due to Richard Fellows of Hartford) is with the said John Cockrill escaped to New Netherlands, and understanding it they are there at present, upon this said complaint I thought it necessary to request this favor in his behalf that you would please, upon examination of the case, to cause the said James & John to be returned to New Haven by Joseph Alsop, or Mr. Lamberton, except they doe pay the said debt or put in good security for ye same, the said debt being now called for to be paid by the said Daniell Cone. If there shall be the like occassion I shall not be wating to attend the furtherance of equall justice in any case wherein any of yours may be required for.

Your affectionate friend and servant,

JOHN WINTHROP.

It is to be hoped that this, one of the first requisitions issued from one Governor to another, was duly honored, and that these fugitives from justice were found and returned to Connecticut. No record of place of residence of Daniel Cone at this time has been found.

The next we hear of him is in the spring of 1662, when he appears as one of twenty-eight persons who received from the Connecticut Colony a grant of land situated on both sides of the Connecticut river, about thirty miles above its mouth. This land had been in the possession of the Wangunk tribe of Indians from time immemorial. In speaking of the action of the colony, Dr. Fields, in his History of Middlesex County, Conn., published in 1819, says: "On these lands individuals contemplated making a settlement in 1660, and the General Court (or Legislature), apprised of their designs, appointed a committee in October of that year to purchase them of the Indians. But, prevented from some unknown cause, the committee did not accomplish the object of their appointment until May, 1662, when they obtained from these Indians a deed of all the lands, six miles east and west, and from Middletown to Chester. The consideration was thirty (red) coats, which may have been worth one hundred dollars." The members of this committee were Matthew Allyn and Samuel Willys. Here we find that the Connecticut Colony secured from these poor, uneducated Indians more than one hundred thousand acres of land, more productive than it is at the present time, for less than one-tenth of a cent per acre,—a piece of sharp practice which was no credit to those engaged in it. The Colony granted this land to the twenty-eight settlers, and a few years afterwards the General Court confirmed the title. The town was called Haddam, after Haddam, England. Daniel Cone received his allotment of four acres on the town site, on the west side of the river, with land in the "meadow" and timbered land adjoining, in 1662, and removed thereon the same season. Previous to this he had married Mahitable Spencer, fourth daughter of Jared and Alice Spencer, then of Hartford, Connecticut. Jared Spencer settled at Newtown (now Cambridge), Mass., in 1634; removed to Lynn, Mass., in 1637, to Hartford, Conn., in 1660 or before, and to Haddam, Conn., in 1662, being one of the founders of that new town. Mahitable was born in 1642, at Lynn, and died in Haddam, 1691. Daniel Cone married in 1692, Rebecca, widow of Richard Walkley, of Haddam. No record of her death has been found. He resided in Haddam until 1680, when he removed to the east side of the river, to near "Machimoodus." About the year 1695 he returned to Haddam, where he died, October 24, 1706, "aged 80 years." He was Commissioner for his town in 1669, and held other minor offices. A few months before he died he deeded his lands on the west side of the river at Haddam to his youngest son, Caleb. The following is a copy of this deed:

To all Christian people to whom these presents shall come, I, Daniel Cone, of Haddam, send greeting, in our Lord God Everlasting: Know ye, that I, Daniel Cone, of Haddam, County of Hartford, Colony of Connecticut, in New England, for and in the consideration of love and good-will and affection which I bear and have to and for my well-beloved and dutiful son, Caleb Cone, have given and granted, by these presents do freely, clearly and absolutely give and grant to the said Caleb Cone, his heirs, executors, &c., my dwelling-house, with two allotments joining thereto, with all the fruit trees and buildings I have upon, with all the appurtenances and privileges as I hold unto, which lots contain 5 acres; and a lot that was John Blackford's in the home field lying between the lot of Mr. Nicholas Noyes and the lot of Thomas Brooks, which lot is eight rods wide and length from the Great River to the country road, and my lower division or lot at lower end of meadow, which contains in measure three acres and a half, with one acre I bought of Samuel Spencer, which acre is adjoining to the above three acres and a half; to have and to hold all the said buildings, fruit trees, lands and tenements, with all the privileges, unto the said Caleb Cone, his heirs, executors, &c., from henceforth as his and their own proper estate forever, absolutely without any entailment or enlargement or encumbrance whatsoever. And the said Daniel Cone has absolutely, freely and of his own accord set and put in further testimony as witness.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, the 7th day of October, in the 2nd year of the Reign of our Sovereign Princess Anne, Queen of England, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six.

DANIEL CONE.

Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of

He was twice elected to this position, with a term of four years each time. In 1856 he was elected State Senator. Hosford B. Niles, in his History of East Haddam, says, in referring to Judge Cone, that "He was perhaps one of the most brilliant men ever raised in this town." Chief Justice Lumpkin, of Georgia, in speaking of him, said: "He had a keen sense of the ludicrous, and excited mirth in every circle. The ordinary conversation of Judge Cone was a string of pearls of wit and humor, and he was the most agreeable of companions." He d. in Greensburg, Ga., May 18, 1859. About the last sentence he uttered was this: "I am at peace with all the world and have no ill-will for any human being," and it is hard to believe the statement of the biographer of Hon. Alexander Stephens, that Judge Cone attacked Stephens with a knife in a street fight and nearly killed him.

She was b. in East Haddam 1727, and d. same place June 10, 1772. They were members of the Cong. Ch. for over fifty years, and for many years he was a Deacon of the church. In 1755 he was appointed Ensign of the first company of the military "train band" of East Haddam. A few years before his death he sent a petition to the Connecticut Legislature relating to the services of his sons in the Revolutionary War. The original document from which this is copied is now in the possession of Mr. R. R. Cone, of Millington, town of East Haddam, Conn. The petition, without the preamble, is as follows:

To the Legislature of the State of Connecticut:

GENTLEMEN:—In the commencement of the late War with Britain I had a number of sons just arrived to fit age to serve their country, and they were not backward to engage in its cause; two of them went in the first alarm made by the Lexington battle, and served the following summer's campaign, and so on, as soldiers were called, for they always engaged. So that some of them was in the service continually, and indeed one of them was in the whole war from the alarm at Lexington till he was dismissed after the preliminaries for peace were signed. Another went twice three years; others twelve months, eight months, four months, &c. So that my sons have done a little more than seventeen years service under enlistments; adding to this the Militia tours they will make up about twenty years' service, for I had six sons that have done service in the country's cause.

In the next place, in relation to wages: The soldiers had wages promised them as an encouragement for them to enlist; right, too, for who goeth a warfare at any time at his own charges? saith the Scriptures. Forty shillings a month, which was said to be good wages, and I dou say that there are not many will say that it was too much, unless it should be some who never served as soldiers, and were they to try a campaign or two I believe they would be convinced. But what was promised would have been good wages had it been received as expected. In respect to what they did receive for wages in the intrinsic value would hardly average thro the whole war at ten shillings a month, and I dou appeal to any one that are acquainted with the matter for the truth of this.

Twenty years' service at forty shillings per month is....£480
One quarter of this, which they did obtain, only.....£120

Difference which was promised and not paid.....£360

So that in this article of wages my family has been cut short £360 lawful money. A pretty interest is here curtailed at once. While my sons were in the service and sick so as to render them unfit for duty they have several times returned out of camp to seek an asylum at home; so I have been at considerable charge in this respect; not that I was not willing to see them when sick and do for them, but of right they ought to have been on the publick expense, and I only mention this to show what I have done for the publick in order to take a fair view of matters presented. Now it may be remembered that after a few years of the war it grew very difficult to procure soldiers, but soldiers must be had by some means or other and the method for this was to class the people and for each class to furnish a soldier at all events, be the sum what it may; and the people began to have an eversion to the service, or rather an eversion to the pay they expected to receive, so that it must be a great sum to make one willing to enlist. In this way I have been obliged to pay no inconsiderable sum of money. It is true that war was long and must of necessity be attended with no small expense, but has not Independence cost us dear, and we entertained with the bare empty shell of liberty? The old maxim says, "It is cruel to ride a free horse to death." Where is wisdom? where is equity and justice which ought to reside among a people, but at this day seems hardly to be found, and if equity is not strictly attended to amongst a people there will be many complaints, and upon just grounds, too.

Now after all this service done my interest has been wrenched away from me by warrants and sold at the publick post considerably short of the true value for the publick taxes, and I am now left without any hoof of an ox to help myself with or even to draw my wood, for this long and cold winter, I have drawn wood on a hand sled altho in the seventy-fifth year of my age. Now where is equity? Must some be burdened till they expire under the load, while others are making (I believe) ample fortunes out of the publick? Who of any spirit can bear this and not complain, and have I not just grounds; or, do you think, gentlemen, that the common people are made to be like so many asses only to bear burdens!

I believe that much of the expense of this war could have been saved, but the great inequality is what I complain of; only let there be a proportion through the state and merit suitably considered and then I would be willing to take my lot with my neighbors and struggle along as well as I could.

I submit the whole to your consideration, Gentlemen, and if I am wrong and have no cause to complain, I hope I may be led to see my error.

NATHANIEL CONE.

East Haddam, March, 1787.

He d. of cancer in East Haddam Apr. 15, 1790, and it is believed that the Legislature took no decided action on this petition, as no mention of such action has been found.

Ichabod Phelps, 3d Regiment Connecticut troops, and served ninety-nine days, for which service he received £4 14s. 3d., as appears from the "Roll of troops" now in possession of the Connecticut State Library at Hartford. He enlisted again on May 30, 1756, in Capt. Edmund Wells's company, 4th Conn. Regt., and was discharged Nov. 26, 1756, and received for his services £10 6s. 10d. Nearly twenty years afterwards, the soldier instinct being strong within him, we find him volunteering as a Minute Man in the Revolutionary War at the battle of Bunker Hill. In 1776 he enlisted in the Connecticut Militia, under Capt. Joseph Woodford. The rolls of this company are not complete, but, judging from his previous record, he undoubtedly served his country long and faithfully in that war. For fifty years he was an active member of the First Cong. Ch. in East Haddam, and d. there May 5, 1812, aged 81 years.

When Mr. Cone was 90 years old he sent me at my request the following autobiographical sketch:

"I was raised on a farm. At the age of 22 years was appointed Postmaster of the town and Captain in a militia company. When 24 years old was elected Sheriff of the county, and was a mail contractor for a forty-mile route. Engaged in farming, hotel-keeping, and dealer in goods; also, as land agent. In 1832 was appointed agent of the Anti-Slavery Society. Also, was agent of the American Temperance Society and was sent by the latter into the State of Maine. Here I joined the Maine Methodist Conference, and commenced the ministry at Gorham Corners. Was soon appointed Agent for the State of Maine in the Anti-Slavery Society, and also Agent of the State Temperance Society. Was three years Superintendent of Schools. Was sent as a Delegate to the World's Anti-Slavery Convention, held in London, England. Was a Delegate to the National Temperance Convention in Chicago, Illinois; also a Delegate to the National Anti-Slavery Convention in New York. Was twice a Delegate to the General Conference of the M. E. Church. Three years Agent of the American Bible Society; two years Agent of the Freedman's Aid Society; eight years Presiding Elder of the Maine Conference of the M. E. Church; and have served a number of terms as Justice of the Peace. You may infer from these facts that I have had a busy life, which I understand to be the best guarantee of a long life and a green old age."

He is President of the Merchants' National Bank and of the Portland Benevolent Society, and also of the Portland Publishing Company. For four terms he was Mayor of the city of Portland, and under his administration many reforms were inaugurated. He has been prominently mentioned for Governor of Maine, but has always discouraged efforts in that direction. Many years ago he began the collection from foreign and domestic archives of documents relating to the history of New England and Canada, and it is stated that he now possesses the largest collection of historical manuscripts relating thereto to be found in private hands in this country. He is now editing, for the Maine Historical Society (of which he is President), the eighth volume of the "Documentary History of Maine." He is President of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and is one of the Council of the American Antiquarian Society. Is President of the Portland Savings Bank and Vice-President of the Portland Trust Company, and a Director in several other large corporations. Res. Portland.

(4392) ORSON CONE, son of Enoch Cone (4182) and Elizabeth Cook, b. in Wells, Vt., Feb. 7, 1814; d. at same place Apr. 10, 1888. He was never married, and was totally blind for over forty years. The pluck, determination, indomitable energy and industry displayed by this member of the Cone tribe under most adverse circumstances should receive due credit in a publication of this nature. Although in total darkness for nearly a lifetime, he was never idle. He chopped, sawed and split wood for his neighbors, going without aid from house to house at this occupation. He threshed wheat every season, going from farm to farm with unerring accuracy, and always without a guide. He used a hand-flail, and threshed from twenty to thirty hundred bushels of grain each year. He husked corn, and, in fact, did almost any kind of farm work. This man was a hero, and if there is a reward in the great future for honest industry in this world, he will surely receive it.

(4418) BENJAMIN BISHOP CONE, son of Noah Cone (4209) and Rachel Bishop, b. in Haddam Jan. 19, 1797, removed to Ontario county, N. Y., in 1808, and was m. Oct. 6, 1832, to Lucy Whitney Colt, dau. of William Williams Colt and Huldah Whitney. She was b. in Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 18, 1807, and removed with her parents to western New York, then a wilderness, in 1816. I have often heard her relate incidents in connection with her girlhood in that wild western country. The nearest mill was at Geneva, a distance of forty miles. There were hardly any roads, and the grist was often loaded on an ox and taken to mill, and then loaded with flour, returning in the same way, the trip being made in six days. Often a hole was burnt in the top of a stump, and in this primitive hopper the corn was placed and pounded out with a stone or hard-wood pestle, and the product was eaten with relish. The wolves often followed her nearly home when she was belated at night, returning with the cows. Previous to her marriage she united with the Presbyterian Ch., and remained until her death an active and consistent member of that denomination. She d. in Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1870, and is buried in Mount Hope Cemetery at that place. My father was a stock-dealer and farmer. In buying his cattle his trips extended far into the West. Starting from St. Louis with his stock, he would drive them overland to Buffalo, N. Y., where he would sell them and return horseback to St. Louis for more, the distance being over 800 miles each way. He was strictly temperate, and under no circumstances would he ever drink a drop of spirituous liquors. He d. at Pittsford, Monroe county, N. Y., July 28, 1842.

She was b. Richmond, Ontario county, N. Y., May 11, 1807, and d. Avon, Mich., Aug. 7, 1889, aged 82 years. She removed with her relatives to Michigan in 1825, coming by way of Canada with teams, the journey occupying thirty-two days. "Aunt Polly," as she was affectionately called, was one of the most generous-hearted and kindly women I ever knew, always helping the poor and attending the sick, and her memory will be cherished in ages yet to come. Linus Cone had a very limited education when a boy. Through perseverance and industry he became one of the most successful farmers in Michigan, and received the prize year after year for the best farm in that State, as long as was allowed to compete. He became one of the leading agricultural writers of the West. Was associate editor of the Michigan Farmer, and Vice-President for many years of the Michigan Agricultural Society. He often told me to study the dictionary, for there was where he got his education. He was strictly temperate; never borrowed; upright, honest and just with everyone. He was a Republican in politics; in religion a Universalist. He d. Oct. 12, 1875. His life was a noble example for the youth of the country to follow.

She was b. near that historic spot in Chester county, Pa., where so many of our Continental soldiers lost their lives through privation and want during the winter of 1777-8, viz., Valley Forge. Her earliest associations were connected with this neglected "camping-ground" of our Revolutionary patriots, and early in life she resolved to do what she could to preserve that historic place and raise a monument to the memory of those who had suffered and died there. She wrote many articles, both prose and verse, to the press of the United States upon the subject. Through her solicitation Hon. George W. Childs and Mr. Drexel of Philadelphia became interested, and their efforts resulted in forming the Valley Forge Monumental Association, and Mrs. Cone became its first President. She is also a member of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Society. Is a talented and cultured magazine-writer of both prose and poetry. While traveling with her husband in Europe, in 1875, she wrote a series of very interesting descriptive articles, which were published in the Philadelphia Enquirer and other prominent papers of this country. Her letters to the press from South America while her husband was Consul in that country were of a very interesting nature. In Apr. 1865, immediately after the Union troops captured Richmond, Va., Miss Thropp was sent with four other ladies as a committee from Philadelphia with hospital stores to the sick and wounded soldiers of Richmond, the Government furnishing a steamer to carry them. They were the first ladies from the North to enter Richmond after its capture. In July of the same year she again went to Richmond, to assist the American Union Commission to establish free schools for whites in that city. She res. at Oil City, Pa.

Mr. Cone res. in Riga, N. Y., until 1849, when he removed to Milford, Mich., and engaged in commercial pursuits. In 1862 he removed to Oil City, Pa., and became Superintendent of the United Petroleum Association. In 1868 he purchased the Oil City Times, and became its editor, owner and publisher. In 1870 he collected the statistics and published "Petrolia: A History of the Pennsylvania Petroleum Region," an illustrated volume of 650 pages. In 1873 Gov. Hartranft appointed him as State Commissioner to the Vienna World's Exposition. In 1876 President Grant appointed him Consul at Para, Brazil. In 1878 President Hayes appointed him as Consul at Pernambuco, Brazil. After a service here of two years his health failed and he returned to the United States, and d. in Oil City Nov. 7, 1880.

[There are many others of the tribe of Cone that I am reasonably certain are descendants of Daniel Cone of Haddam, but as I have been unable to trace them direct to him, I place them here in the earnest hope that some member of each branch will continue this investigation and make more careful and extended search than I have been able to make. It is a source of great regret to me that I have been unable to find these missing links. There is no doubt whatever in my mind but that the head of every family mentioned in this connection can and will eventually be traced direct to Daniel Cone of Haddam.]

ELIJAH CONE.

(6049) ELIJAH CONE and wife, Elizabeth (Stuart) Cone, undoubtedly lived at Millington, Conn., as seven of their children were bapt. in the Cong. Ch. in that place. The family have a tradition that Elijah lived at Millington, in the town of East Haddam, and left there in the year 1795 to find a location for a home in the eastern part of New York State. That he bought land in Otsego county, N. Y., and while on his return, in attempting to cross Hudson river on the ice, was drowned. The family, with the exception of Statira and Elizabeth, removed to their new home the next season. The widow afterward married a Mr. Brown, and died at a great age in Delaware county, N. Y.

A CONE REUNION.

Social gatherings and reunions of the tribe should be encouraged in every branch. At the request of the compiler, the Rev. William W. Curtis, of Oberlin, Ohio, formerly missionary to Japan, has written the following article descriptive of the reunion of a branch of the family located in northern Ohio. These reunions are easily arranged, and socially are always a success.

For about a dozen years the Salmon tribe of Cones has been holding an annual reunion. The custom originated, as most things do, by a sort of evolutionary process. It was a natural development. With eight families of this Cone clan in Ohio and seven of the eight at Painesville or in adjoining towns, none of them far from Lake Erie, it came to be a matter of common occurrence that in the summer-time some one of the tribe should propose a picnic at the lake; the program being—a swim, a sing, a lunch, and a good time generally; and all of the kin who could, would make it a point to be there and participate in the good time. Then again, when Thanksgiving Day or Christmas came around there was ever a strong drawing that often proved irresistible toward the old homestead, where the latchstring was always out, and father and mother were ever glad to welcome home the children. For several years in succession during the last years of Father Cone's life there was a general home-gathering on Thanksgiving Day. When Father was taken away there was more reason than ever why on that day of all days Mother should not be left alone; so the custom was continued. So pleasurable and profitable it proved to be, that though a few years later the mother too was called away, the brothers and sisters would not forego their annual gathering, and it was decided to formally organize and elect officers.

Since that formal organization, more than a decade of years has passed, the rising generation has greatly enlarged the circle, and the annual convocation of the Cone Kin Club has become a notable event, not likely soon to be given up. For this last decade and more, since the old homestead has lost its chief attraction by the death of the beloved parents, it has been the custom to change the place of meeting from year to year, and to "swing around the circle" of those living near Painesville. For a dozen years the circle could at no time be complete because of the absence of Lydia, the youngest sister, in Japan. For a much longer period two of the brothers, Augustus and Eugene, have lived in Kansas, and so found it difficult to be present at these annual gatherings. In 1899, the first year after the return to Ohio of the Japanese contingent, a special effort was made, and the whole circle of six brothers and five sisters came together once again at the old homestead. Down by the famous spring that slaked their thirst of old, the tables were spread, under a grand old willow tree, younger by many years than any of the original members of the circle, but suggestive in its wonderful growth and its marvelous spread of branches, of the growth of the tribe, and equally of the growth in experience and character of those who once again were gathered there. The uncles and the cousins and the aunts were all there, of course, a host of Father Cone's grandchildren, and at least a half-dozen of great-grandchildren.

Besides the hosts of this tribe there were several representatives of two other branches of the family of Cone,—Ambrose Cone, son of Erastus, and the family of Wells Cone, son of Edwin; and these relatives are as regular attendants at these reunions as are the children of Salmon.

This particular gathering in '99 might be called a soldiers' reunion as well as a family one, for four of the brothers—Goodlow, Isaac, Frank, and Abijah, and two of the brothers-in-law, Simeon Green and William Curtis—had worn the blue in the War for the Union, and two of Isaac's sons, Earl and Roy, had served in the Spanish-American War.

It was a memorable occasion, the first time in more than a score of years that the brothers and sisters had all been together. Time has already shown us, by the death of a sister, that never again in this world can we meet an unbroken circle. Yet may this gathering of the clans from year to year long be continued, and, when we one by one have all dropped out of these earthly gatherings, may we all meet again in glad reunion of the Cone Circle complete in one of the many mansions of our Father's house in Heaven.

WILLIAM WILLIS CURTIS.

EAST HADDAM.

Five of the sons of Daniel Cone settled in East Haddam, Connecticut, and it seems appropriate that the following well-written sketch of this town should find a place in this book. It was written by Mr. Cephas Brainerd, jr., of New York (a Cone descendant) a few months prior to his death in 1898.

East Haddam is part of the large tract of land bought of the Wangunk Indians in 1662 by Matthew Allyn and Samuel Willys, and settled soon after by a company consisting of twenty-eight families, including that of Daniel Cone. The tract is divided by rivers into three sections: one on the western side of the Connecticut, about eight miles long and six wide, which retains the original name of Haddam; one on the eastern side, of triangular shape, lying between the Connecticut and Salmon rivers, locally known as Haddam Neck; and one, the present East Haddam, lying south of the Salmon and east of the Connecticut. All were included under the original government till 1734, when East Haddam was constituted a separate town.

In 1670 (1680?) Daniel Cone, Daniel Brainerd, jr., and one of the several men bearing the name of Gates, crossed the "Great River" as it was then called, with their families, and built their houses on the hillside just below the northern limit of East Haddam, then called by the Indians "Match-it-mood-us." The site cannot be exactly located, but the road now called Creek Row leads past it. From their new homes the pioneers could look up across the Great River and see the houses of their friends in the earlier settlement. At their feet the Salmon river, coming down from the northeast, joined the larger stream; the hill on which they lived rose high and massive, but every curve of outline and surface was easy and graceful.

Less than a mile below the mouth of the Salmon is the Upper Landing. There is barely space between the foot of the hills and the water's edge for a small cluster of houses. The most prominent building is the Champion house, a square brick structure close to the bank. On the other side of the street is the house in which Gen. Champion lived, and the Maplewood Seminary for young ladies. The village street with a slight rise and turn brings us upon a natural terrace from ten to thirty rods wide, terminating at the river in rocky cliffs of moderate height. Between street and river, surrounded with green lawns bright here and there with flowers, are cozy houses, the homes of industrious and prosperous people.

High on the hill to the east stands the Congregational church, built in 1794, the third erected by the ecclesiastical society of which Daniel Cone was one of the founders. Not far from it is St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal church, which was organized over a century ago, and the name of Cone appears with others signed to the original papers. In the beautiful little chapel recently built on the street along the river hangs the quaint old bell which for centuries tolled the hour of prayer in a Spanish convent. The inscription on it is thus translated in the County History: "The Prior being most Rev. Father Miguel Villa Mueva, The Procurator the most Rev. Father Josi F. Estevan Coralles has made me. Made in the year A. D. 815."

A mile below the Upper Landing is Goodspeed's, so named from Joseph Goodspeed. Here is the Gelston house. It is from this landing that the road leads which communicates with the villages in the eastern part of the town. For the first half-mile it lies between beautiful country homes about which cluster every charm of turf and flower, shrub and tree, which taste and care can give. Soon the street begins to rise, coursing diagonally up a steep hill. At the top of the hill the road divides, one branch leading north at Moodus, and the other east to Millington. This is a high plateau in the midst of a farming region. The center is of course the Congregational church, with the postoffice near by. From the church can be seen two miles to the northeast, the large knoll near Howard's (formerly Shaw's) Lake, where Beebe and Cone settled. A mile to the south is the farm owned by Jonah Cone, and where later lived Nathaniel Cone, whose six sons fought in the Revolution, and at whose house Generals Washington and Joseph Spencer spent a night. All the land in sight except the town farm was at some time owned by a Cone, while the birth, marriage and death of many a member of the family is told in the church record. The oldest and smallest headstone in the cemetery is that of Jonah Cone, who died in 1749, on which the writer could barely trace the words and letters "Memory," "Jonah," "on," "9."

The hills rise in picturesque irregularity; some are covered with woods, some are open pastures, while clusters of farm-houses dot the scene here and there. Through the country from north to south runs the Connecticut like a path of silver; the mild New England haze softens the whole, and shows how lovely Nature is in her gentleness. The town abounds in traces and marks of the earlier times. The old houses, many of which still stand, were all built with a large chimney as the core, and in a drive along the back roads one is likely to see anywhere these pyramidal piles of stone rising out of old cellars. So characteristic is this feature of old New England towns that Mr.

Niles, when he wrote the story of the various landmarks of East Haddam, left by former generations, called his quaint and interesting book "Old Chimney-Stacks."

The history of the town is the usual Connecticut story of courage, common-sense, and hard work: first the home, then the church, then the town government. In 1770 a town meeting was called to take action in regard to the famous non-importation agreement. Ebenezer Cone, jr., presided, and a committee of three was appointed to see whether any of the merchants in the town were bringing in English goods contrary to the agreements. The minutes say: "The agreements are universally entered into, (except by a growling few who justly deserve the contempt of every honest man.)" This meeting, in the light of contemporaneous history, shows the spirit of East Haddam men.

THE FAMILY TREE.

BY JOE CONE.

In many ages past there stood
A large pine tree just by the wood,
And owing to the wholesome air
The tree began to bear and bear.
The fruits thereof dropped to the ground
And shook the earth for miles around.
Some lodged amid the sticks and stones,
And people said, "We'll call them cones."
And some were blown the country o'er,
Which multiplied by score on score.
One lodged out West — land of bonanzas,
And rooted in Topeka, Kansas.

And thriving there he thought that all
His brothers, sisters, great and small,
In one big basket ought to be,
And sorted out in turn, so he Could make a list and tell just how
And when they bloomed upon the bough.

With basket then, a roomy one,
His endless task was soon begun.
At first he went beneath the tree
And piled them in with boyish glee.
A breeze sprang up which shook the top,
And caused a score or two to drop.
Some were so lively, full of fun,
They scaled the top and cut and run;
And some so small they sifted through;
And very sorrowful he grew.
But on he wrought with iron will,
And tried his basket hard to fill.
"Aha!" quoth he, "a climb I'll take,
And give the old pine tree a shake."
Then straightway rose a rattling sound,
And cones were scattered miles around.

But, nothing daunted, on he wrought,
And other mammoth baskets brought.

And to this day he's gathering cones
From down amid the sticks and stones;
And though they've spread from pole to pole,
He has them on his pine-tree roll.

Andrew Cone Dies of Pneumonia.

Andrew Cone, President of the Andrew Cone General Advertising Company, 154 Nassau Street, died at his home at Red Bank, N. J., last night as a result of pneumonia which developed from an attack of influenza. He was 60 years old and unmarried. He was born in Nashville, Tenn. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Society of Founders and Patriots. His clubs were the New York Club, the Rumson Club of Rumson County, N. J., and several of the more prominent clubs of the Shrewsbury section, where he has lived for many years.
